Case Summary
The Bank Really Wants The Farm! NAB have relentlessly denied misconduct and blame. Shortly after Lewis spoke up at the Extend the Banking Royal Commission event in Canberra he was arrested for trespass on his own farm. This video shows the arrest as Lewis stands his ground and defends his property in West Australia.

Are the vultures gathering? Lewis is not alone! For details, documentation and full story please refer to Bank Victims Horror Stories section Case 3). www.bankreformnow.com.au/bank-victims

21/09/2018 - The action brought upon Lewis doesn't seem to be an isolated case. How many more people and families who spoke up on 14th August 2018 are to be targeted?

Lewis has written to the following, requesting their 'immediate' intervention of NAB's criminal actions.

- The Prime Minister, Scott Morrison
- Leader of the Opposition, Bill Shorten
- The Attorney General, Christian Porter
- The Sheriff's Office

Lewis is awaiting further contact from NAB. All of the people who emailed NAB in response to the call out of his situation on the 12th Sept were advised that NAB will continue to work with Lewis to reach a resolution.

Update (13/09/2018) - Lewis was later released after being charged. He will either be found to be trespassing or that the bank has stolen his property.

Active As Of (12/09/2018) - Bank Victim Lewis Tomcsanyi, who spoke in Parliament house about his case on 14th August, has been put in a paddy wagon by police in WA while NAB attempted to seize his property.

Lewis maintains this is unlawful

Rita Mazalevskis (Lewis' niece) has asked if our network of Bank Reform and bank victim supporters could urgently email andrew.thorburn@nab.com.au (NAB CEO) - and anyone else you wish to inform. We need to call for a cessation of this process. The matter must be dealt with through explanation of the legalities of the NAB loan ... not by force and abusing the legal system.

The legal arguments in Lewis' case are in dispute and need resolving. This case has wider implications that affect all of us.
